WHERE IT ALL BEGAN, IT BEGINS AGAIN.

River Landing

LIFE HAPPENS ON THE RIVER: PAST, PRESENT, FUTURE.

People will always converge at the river. It's in our nature — whether to find our fortune, shop and socialize, or just admire the view. And soon, River Landing will reignite Miami's legacy and bring urban living to the Miami River.

Over a century ago, this is where Miami was born and is the next place where it will thrive. Doctors, attorneys, government employees and more, from two counties, already work in the Health District, Downtown Miami and Brickell. But city leaders realized there was uncultivated potential here, from lost commerce to a lost sense of community. So in 2008, the new Miami Riverwalk project was launched to create a place where pedestrians can walk along the river, dine at their choice of cafes and shop at various boutiques.

Beyond its commercial assets, the Miami River is also a beloved Miami icon. When Julia Tuttle, the "Mother of Miami" moved to the area in 1891, she had the foresight to believe this city would one day become the center of trade with South America and a gateway to the Americas.

By the time Henry Flagler's first railroad train entered Miami in 1896, a city was rising on both sides of the Miami River. In fact, a year later, just across from the future site of River Landing, Henry Flagler's Gilded Age masterpiece, the Royal Palm Hotel opened its doors. One of the first hotels in this new city, the Royal Palm Hotel greeted Miami's elite tourists with the city's first electric lights, first elevators, a golf course and a sparkling swimming pool. Flagler welcomed the world to modern Miami on the Miami River. At the heart of the community was a retail district north of the river, in the pines along today's Miami Avenue. Picture the hustle and bustle of 19th century women in long skirts and men in waistcoats shopping and socializing.

History's greatest start-ups began along a riverbank. And Miami was one of them. The Miami River launched the flow of commerce, inspired new technological innovations and shaped the development of society. Continuing this vision for the Miami River and surrounding community, a new destination will emerge.

INTRODUCING RIVER LANDING.

INFINITE POSSIBILITIES

RIVER LANDING: VISIBLE, ACCESSIBLE, UNFORGETTABLE.

CENTRALLY LOCATED AND ATTRACTIVELY DESIGNED, River Landing's vertical presence cannot be missed. And with the vision of HGTV "Design Star" David Bromstad on board, it will never be overlooked.

"The chance to transform something as fantastic as a portion of the Miami River is a chance of a lifetime. I see the Miami River as THE NEXT PLACE IN MIAMI TO LIVE, EAT AND WORK. I foresee the entire river becoming what it should be: one of the most fabulous places in Miami."

About 150,000 drivers pass by the location daily. This prestigious group of professionals includes doctors and nurses on their way to work at Jackson Memorial Hospital, Bascom Palmer Eye Institute, University of Miami's Miller School of Medicine and nationally recognized research institutes. You'll find judges, attorneys and government employees on their way to and from Civic Center. And commuters on the Dolphin Expressway will regularly see this BEACON OF RETAIL, DINING AND ENTERTAINMENT — featuring prominent retail signage.

It's estimated that 190,000 people work in downtown Miami and Brickell. And with 71,000 people year-round residents in Brickell and downtown — as well as close to 200,000 residents living in the immediate area, downtown Miami is one of the most populous downtowns in the United States.

River Landing is strategically located to cater to this underserved clientele. Morning, noon and night, River Landing will be there for retail, recreation and retreat. This is their place to breathe.

A BEACON FOR MIAMI & BEYOND

A RIVER ATTRACTION: AN URBAN DESTINATION

People in Miami love to SHOP, DINE AND LIVE IT UP IN BEAUTIFUL SURROUNDINGS. And River Landing will be a destination that takes full advantage of the landscape and central location of the Miami River district.

This is a place where Miami's natural beauty becomes a design element. Imagine blue skies instead of ceilings and river views instead of walls. Green is everywhere, from the palm trees sprinkled throughout to the lawn filled with locals and tourists waiting to turn a day of shopping into an exciting night out.

From lunch hours to first dates, River Landing creates a relaxing experience for those who want to live and play near their work. It will be the heart of the community and more than a weekday hangout. It's a place they can reconnect with the river, as well as their free time. Walkable and livable, River Landing is their place to work it. Because after the sun goes down and the movie screen lights up, Miami will know it has a new destination to call its own — River Landing.
